

The Second World War

Series Editor: JEREMY BLACK, University of Exeter, UK

World War II defined the 20th century and shaped the contemporary world, from the decolonisation of Africa to the rise and fall of the Berlin Wall.

This comprehensive series, edited by a leading military historian, offers a focused overview of this complex and volatile era, taking into account the political, economic and social factors, as well as the military circumstances of the road to war and its consequences. Each of the seven volumes is augmented by a full length and detailed introduction by the editor, and each volume gathers together the seminal articles on specific arenas of the war, providing a convenient and essential resource for researchers and general readers alike.

'Professor Black is to be congratulated on having assembled a notable series...in the course of this comprehensive collection of shrewdly selected articles, Professor Black has deftly highlighted much of what made the Second World War unique...there is much in the series to assist the undergraduate and researcher in confirming a grasp of both historiography and the cut and thrust of revisionist debate.'
